

DoorDash:

Summary

At a high level, DoorDash is working to foster a mutually beneficial relationship between Merchants and DoorDash with the goal of ensuring great customer experiences through reduction of low 'quality' deliveries. When consumers experience an issue with the accuracy of their order and report this to DoorDash, the goal is to share this data with our Merchant partners and share in the overall refunds given to our customers.

This allows Merchants to use these charges as a discovery mechanism to realize the opportunity cost of low quality deliveries and ultimately reduce errors through operational and product changes.

How does DoorDash determine whether a refund is charged back to a Merchant?

How does DoorDash determine the amount that is charged back and/or refunded?

Depending on the reason for the credit or refund offered to the customer, DoorDash may charge up to 100% of the value (inclusive of Item Costs, Service Fees, Delivery Fees, and Tax) back to the restaurant. Our main priorities are to maintain customer satisfaction, encourage customers to continue ordering from the merchant, and limit any customer abuse of our Credits & Refunds policy.

To determine the specific amount we use the following general rules*:

- For items in the order that are marked missing (e.g. missing a dessert), customers may be refunded and merchants may be charged up to 100% of the value for that item(s)
- Where only part of the item is missing (e.g. fries in a combo meal), the charge may be up to 50% of the value for that item(s)
- For items marked as "incorrect", the charge may be up to 50% of the item

These rules are subject to change as we work to find the right balance of maintaining customer satisfaction and merchant feedback*

How can I review order accuracy errors?

Merchants can access their Error Report from the Dashboard of their Merchant Portal for a selected timeframe. The report exports as a .csv file, so it is viewable across devices.

Is DoorDash doing anything to inhibit customers or dashers who try to take advantage of the system?

DoorDash has a team dedicated to identifying and reducing abuse across the platform for both consumers and dashers. The following rules are meant to protect Merchants specifically:

- The large majority of abuse on the platform is committed by First-time Users. Those users are always excluded from our chargeback policy, and DoorDash covers those costs
- Users who are identified as abusers of our credits and refunds policy are banned from using our in-app tools and must contact an agent to discuss their particular situation
- When customers consistently request a high # of refunds, they are given a badge. Once they have the badge they are prevented from getting any kind of credit or refund in the future without escalating directly to our support team
- We have launched two factor authentications to aid in preventing fraudulent customers from joining in the first place
- Data shows Driver fraud is very rare. DoorDash has conducted sealed bag tests with partners and order accuracy did not improve

Off-Premise: Delivery Charge Back Refund Guide

What should I do if I believe one of the error charges was reported incorrectly?

If you think an order error adjustment is incorrect or unwarranted, please submit a case via the Merchant Portal within 10 days of the order error or order's delivery date.

Note that every order error adjustment is evaluated on a case-by-case basis. Multiple factors are considered and we have measures in place to protect against potentially fraudulent customers or Dashers, as noted above. Accordingly, any reversals are entirely at DoorDash's discretion and are not a guarantee of future reversals.

*To submit a refund request please have the order number and date. You may submit multiple requests at once by uploading an xls file to: Merchant Portal > Help > Account Support > Payments
